GOP's Talcott Flays Spending, Obligating Future Generations

Republican Congressman Burt Talcott deplored the spending record of the 89th Congress during a recent appearance in the Library Patio.

"The spending of this congress was one of the highest in our country's history," he declared. "We probably spent more than $263 billion, and that is more than we took in.

"Some things must be done and they cost money, but we should be careful how we spend other people's money," Talcott claimed.

"One of the problems that we have today is our financially obligating people for generations to come. We set some projects up for 40 years in advance without even knowing how well they will function."

A student asked Talcott to explain his position on the "Great Society."

"I suppose that we all agree to the objectives of the 'Great Society'," he said. "But I feel that there are better methods than the 'Great Society' to solve problems.

"We have to tackle the problems of the lack of motivation, lack of education, and lack of training. I think that we can find the solutions through the schools, private industry, and labor unions."

Talcott called the "War on Poverty" a "terribly expensive program."

"However," Talcott added, "I have voted for 90 per cent of the 'Great Society' programs, including medicare, and the 1964 and 1965 civil rights acts."

He claimed that "The Administration does not have a monopoly on the 'Great Society.' But when I voted against a proposal it was because I thought that I had a better, more constructive alternative."

Talcott was asked about "black power" and bloc voting.

"I am not a great advocate of the cry "black power," he replied. "But I sympathize with its objectives. The problem is that when Negros talk about "black power" they set themselves apart which is contrary to the principles of individualism."

A student asked for Talcott's stand on the Vietnam War.

"I don't like it and I don't want to risk another life or dollar," he answered. "I think our cause is honorable, though. We can't withdraw, abandon the Vietnamese, or surrender. I have not been critical of the Administration's policy in Vietnam because it would be encouraging to the enemy and discouraging to the families of our men over there."

Another student asked Talcott to give his definition of "our cause."

"Our cause is to prevent aggression," he responded. "We stopped the aggressive technique of full-scale invasion in Korea. Now we are faced with a new technique of infiltration and terrorism. If we don't stop it there and now, it will be used in countries much nearer to our borders.

"We can not police the world, nor can we feed the world. And we should not try to impose our views on the world. But I will vote to appropriate the necessary funds to support our soldiers," Talcott said.

Barron Speaks Today at Noon

Gerald Barron, Democratic candidate for Congress, will speak to students today at noon in the Library Patio.

Barron's opponent, incumbent Republican Congressman Burt Talcott, appeared in the Library Patio last Friday. At that time Barron made three attempts to debate with Talcott.

As Dr. Jack Leach, Chairman of the Political Science Department, was introducing Talcott to the audience, Barron approached the speaker's podium and offered to debate.

"Mr. Talcott and I were jointly invited to appear here," Barron said. "But it's my understanding that Mr. Talcott has refused the opportunity to debate."

Dr. Leach explained to Barron that "I have arranged to give you equal time." He then asked Barron to take a seat in the audience.

After Talcott finished his opening remarks and called for "questions from any of the students,"

First 'Feast of Nations' Takes Place November 11

A "Feast of Nations" will take place on Veterans' Day in the Student Union, Frank Wang, ASMPC President, announced.

Sponsored jointly by ASMPC, the Inter-Club Council, and the International Relations Club, "The 'Feast of Nations' will be an old fashioned Thanksgiving turkey feed," Wang said.

The Citizens Committee of Carmel is providing three large turkeys. Various clubs on campus will provide soups, salads, desserts and drinks. IRC will bring foreign foods while ASMPC will provide decorations and trimmings.

The "Feast of Nations" will be open without charge to members and their guests of all participating clubs and organizations. About 150 people are expected, Wang said.

The "Feast" starts at 6 p.m. on November 11. There will be dancing to records afterwards.

Reagan, Brown in Vote Test Today

Just as California voters will do on Nov. 8, students "go to the polls" today to choose between candidates for Governor and Lt. Governor and decide on Propositions 1A and 16.

The mock election, sponsored by Young Democrats and Student Republicans and presented to the whole student body, is designed to make students more aware of the responsibilities of voting. Real ballots will simulate authenticity.

Appearing on the ballot are the names of two-term Democratic Governor Edmund Brown and his Republican opponent, former actor Ronald Reagan, bidding for the chief executive job.

Running for Lt. Governor, who runs the state while the governor is absent, are incumbent Glenn Anderson, Democrat, and Los Angeles lawyer Robert Finch, Republican.

Also for student consideration are two propositions, 1A and 16. The former would revise the state constitution, shortening it drastically, while raising legislators' salaries and adjusting judicial boundaries. It is supported by both Brown and Reagan.

The latter, Prop. 16, deals with control of alleged "obscene matter." Its supporters say it is necessary to "stop the flood of pornography in the state," while its critics denounce it as "dangerous, unworkable and unconsitutional."

Berkeley Dissent Inspires Student-Faculty Forum

"Are you intimidated by academic pressure?" was the subject of discussion at a student-faculty forum in the Audio-Visual Room recently.

Mr. Edward Farrington, moderator, declared "This topic came out of the Berkeley dissent. Students feel there is little or no communication between students and faculty.

"In the 1950's students were apathetic, but in this decade they are discontent," he said. "The great danger is that the student moves in the direction of group rebellion with destructive overtones. This wouldn't happen if there were better communications."

Dr. Jack Leach, panelist, claimed "I think the pressure here is far too light. You're not put under enough pressure, your creativity is not dragged out. Pressure moves us to the point of self-direction, or what Mao Tse-tung calls the take-off point.

"Achievement motives are created by pressure and tension resulting from hurt to one's ego or self-respect. Students high in ability to achieve condone lower achievements because there is no pressure," he said.

Lee Bradford, student panelist, opposed Dr. Leach's philosophy. "We shouldn't have the grade-point system. The suicide rate is 50% higher among students, apparently because of academic, social, and economic pressure—this unremitting anxiety."

Mr. Elliott Roberts, faculty panelist, seemed to agree with Bradford. "Measuring achievement on a scale is highly detrimental to education. What is the use of being in the upper 10% of your class if you are still ignorant?

"College should provide the individual with an understanding and knowledge of one's own goals," he said. "Education should turn a student on. I cannot see academic pressure as a vital part in education. Even many brilliant scholars have committed suicide.

"The motivation in education should be interest," Mr. Roberts added.

Student panelist Steve Corey stated that he agreed in part with Dr. Leach. "Many students here have not accepted college life as being hard work, but as an extension of high school—a social responsibility.

"If junior colleges could be more selective we would have a tougher grading system," he said. "People harp at the system when they can't hack it.

"A healthy attitude," Corey said, "is not one of trying to get straight A's, but of trying to pass all subjects and getting good grades in your major."

INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS CLUB MEMBER, Mustafa Ahmad, receives alms during the "United Nations Week." This money will be sent to charities in South Viet Nam. This event, held in the Library Patio, climaxed a week of activities honoring the founding of the Unted Nations 21 years ago.

No on Proposition 16

What does Walt Whitman's Leaves of Grass, Mark Twain's Adventures of Huckleberry Finn, Edgar Rice Burrough's Tarzan series and the Dictionary of American Slang have in common?

At one time or another, these four books have been removed from the shelves in school libraries as unfit for reading.

Californians can surely remember the movement about four years back to remove the Dictionary of American Slang because it defined certain four-letter, Anglo-Saxon words. Very few people had even heard of the dictionary before all the hoop-la, and then everyone was anxious to get hold of a copy, because of the publicity.

elementary school libraries in 1961, because Tarzan was not Tarzan was removed for a short while from Los Angeles married to his faithful companion Jane.

Other books which have been periodically banned from library shelves because of their "preoccupation with sex" are: Brave New World, Exodus, Catcher in the Rye, The Scarlet Letter, The Good Earth and Drums Along the Mohawk.

El Yanqui urges all students to vote no on proposition 16 today in the mock election and in the general election November 8, if they are able to vote. We feel passage of this amendment will give vigilante groups the license to censor our reading.

What we find most disturbing about the proposed amendment is that it deliberately excludes the provision approved by the U.S. Supreme Court which defines obscene matter as that which "is utterly without redeeming social importance."

A Catholic priest, Father Murray, writing on taste, morals and the law, said, "Society has an interest in the artist's expression which is not shared by the family. If adult standards of literature could be dangerous for children, a child's standard is rather appalling for an adult."

Because Proposition 16 does not include the determining clause "utterly without redeeming social importance," which is presently in the Penal Code section being amended, it is very likely the amendment will be ruled unconstitutional by the courts.

There are arrest and convictions being pressed under the present statute. The present laws are adequate to protect the average person in the community. Why pass a law that in all probability will be found unconstitutional? Why penalize ourselves because some persons are highly susceptible to obscenity?

Chinese-Russian Feud Explored

"The Marriage of the Bear and the Dragon," a series of three lecture-film programs on the bitter controversy between China and Russia, is being held in the Music Hall on Wednesday evenings at 8:00.

The first of the three presentations took place Wedensday, November 2. Two more lectures will be presented on November 9 and 16.

Tickets for each lecture are 50c for student body card holders and $1 for the general public.

Raphael Green, who has traveled in China and Mongolia, presented the opening lecture.

The second lecture will be given by Kenneth Armstrong, who has recently returned from Vietnam.

Miss Lisa Hobbs, a foreign correspondent and author of "I Saw Red China," will present the closing lecture.

Having covered 4,000 miles inside Communist China last year, Miss Hobbs will speak on current life on the mainland. Her lecture will emphasize communications and travel, education under the present system, and propaganda in relation to education, art, literature, entertainment and the theater.

'Old Hat' Ritual?

To the Editor:

When something is used sparingly it is valued more than when its usage is common place.

This rule holds true for ceremonies centering around the American flag and the spirit of patriotism.

At football games, for example, it is refreshing to view the flag and hear the national anthem.

But a flag-raising ritual on campus every morning only serves to defeat its own purpose.

The very fact that it occurs, without fail, every day causes it to become—like the raising and setting of the sun, the moon, and the stars —"old hat."

If we want to serve the ideals of this nation, why must we be so content with such superficial means of expression? Dennis Flanders

Author Says USSR Due for Change

By JOHN HERREN

"Not only the intelligentsia," says Valery Tarsis, "but the students, workers, and the ordinary man-on-the-street are chafing under the restrictions of Soviet life. Russia is seething with unrest."

In a lecture at the MPC Armory Friday night, exiled Russian novelist Tarsis criticized the Communist regime as a "Fascist police state" and stated that the people of Russia are bored and unhappy with the endless Communist propaganda which, he says, "fulfills nothing."

"The government of Soviet Russia is composed of killers," Tarsis charged. "Murderers of 20 million people who did not wish to be shackled by chains of oppression. To contradict the state is the same as asking to be shot."

In his first book, "Bluebottle," Taris openly denounced the Soviet state and because of this was imprisoned at Kashchenko Mental Hospital in Moscow as a "mental case" for almost a year.

"You know," he said, "only one out of the 6,000 inmates was actually mentally disturbed. The rest were like me: poets, novelists, and state officials who didn't agree with the system." Recently smuggled to the West, his second book, "Ward 7," tells of the seven months he was imprisoned in the hospital.

After being granted permission by the Soviet government to accept an invitation to lecture at the University of Leicester in England, Tarsis was violently attacked by the Soviet Press as a "madman and a psychopath," and a few days later was stripped of his citizenship by the Supreme Soviet.

In an interview with Tarsis, he was asked by this writer to compare the educational system of the U.S. with that of Russia. "It is necessary in Russia that you be a devout Marxist or else. Everything must have Marxism worked into it. You cannot even study math unless you are thoroughly indoctrinated with Marxist laws. I cannot see what the American student has to complain about."

Asked if he would eventually return to Russia he answered, "Yes to Russia, but never to the Soviet Union."

Means to an End

To the Editor:

I just received a copy of El Yanqui and would like to comment on J. Paige Robertsons' letter to the editor (Oct. 21) referring indirectly to Phi Sigma Chi and the begging in the Student Union. It seems to me that Mr. Robertson spends too much time with his nose in his coffee cup. If that seems like harsh criticism, tough. For you see Mr. Robertson, if you would look beyond that cup, you would find that the money collected by the Phi Sigma Chi pledges goes to a scholarship fund. A fund that provided me with a scholarship upon graduation last year from MPC. Needless to say it helped me to go on and continue my education. His closing slogan "students unite . . ." is perhaps a bit short sighted. I would add, unite and find out what it's all about, then make your decision to give or not. Thanks.

Government and People: Good Pals

Senator Farr Defines Issues

By DENNIS FLANDERS

"One of the big issues in this campaign is who can best represent this district," State Senator Fred Farr, Democrat, declared before students in the Audio-Visual Room recently.

Farr is running against Republican State Senator Donald Grunsky. The two senators have been forced by reapportionment to fight for one seat.

The old senatorial district consisted solely of Monterey County. But reapportionment has added Santa Cruz, San Benito, and San Luis Obispo counties.

"The new district is going to be so big that it will require a full-time senator," Farr claimed. "And I think that I can best represent the district because I will be a full-time senator."

Farr added that Grunsky likes to work part-time as defense counsel for insurance companies.

"Grunsky's attitude is that government is the enemy of the people," Farr declared. "My attitude is that government is the friend of the people. And we can keep out the federal government by strengthening the state government with full-time legislators."

Farr was asked by a student to explain his solution to the race relations problem in California.

"This state's complacent attitude has been shaken in the past few years," Farr replied. What we need are "head start" programs, more employment, better housing, race relations councils, and better trained law enforcers.

"I think we can do a better job right here in finding jobs for minority members. But I don't have any quick, simple solutions."

Another student asked Farr to state what effort he had made in the field of conservation.

"I have been working in the field of conservational education," he answered. "I feel that that's extremely important. I am very much interested in establishing a Redwoods National Park. Also, I would like to see some thought go into freeway planning and the planning of public buildings.

Dr. Jack Leach, Chairman of the Political Science Department asked Farr for his reaction to Republican gubernatorial candidate Ronald Reagan's suggestion of charging tuition at the state universities.

"I disagree with that very, very much," Farr replied. "Tuition-free schools are one of the things that makes higher education in California so well known.

"We have the finest system of higher education in the nation," he added. "The New York Times and Washington Post are always referring to the system in California."

Farr was asked how the outcome of the gubernatorial race might effect higher education and academic freedom in the state.

"Governor Brown has been a very strong supporter of higher education," Farr said. "Reagan's only interest seems to lie in investigating the University of California at Berkeley.

"Brown is the ex-officio chairman of the board of regents of the university. He has attended some of the meetings and he has experience in that field," Farr added.

The governor appoints the members of the board of regents of the state universities and of the board of trustees of the state colleges, Farr explained. "In view of Reagan's attitude toward Berkeley I would be very fearful about who he would appoint."

Varied Topics On ICC Agenda

Blazers, concessions, charity, dances and entertainment were items on the agenda at last week's ICC meeting.

Bill Greenwell, freshman class president, tried to obtain the support of the ICC on a proposed talent show. The show, if approved, will be made up of student talent. Greenwell hopes to present the show twice; at Soledad prison and at the Music Hall here on campus.

Bids for tomorrow night's home concessions were heard. The hot dog concession was given to the YD's, the popcorn concession was given to IRC and the open concession was deposited in Gamma's lap. Sigma Chi will also sponsor the after game dance.

'Minority' Senator Tackles Tradition

By WILLIAM TAYLOR

Call him a rebel with a cause, or an angry young man, Mike Deutsch, freshman senator, represents a minority on this campus. He is definitely aware of this and makes the most of it as an out-spoken critic of student government.

According to Deutsch, "I wanted to participate in student government for multiple reasons: first, I suppose, because hitherto, I had never been denied participation in any democratic organ due to my inability to afford the membership fee.

"Second, because I could see that, in truth, this school did not have a governing body that was really representative of the student body, either economically, morally or politically."

Destroys ASB Card

The 27-year-old freshman angrily walked out in the middle of the last Senate meeting. As he was leaving, he tore up his ASB card and threw the pieces on the Chairman's desk.

"I was attempting to show my contempt for the attitude that the ASMPC was an exclusive group that should not have to bow to the desires or be governed by the dictates of the student body as a whole," claims Deutsch.

"I was pressured into buying this card in order to vote in elections and participate in activities, some of which are entirely curricular. I chose not to partake of the extra-curricular portion of this activity as I cannot afford the luxury of fun and games. The card is a symbol (meaningless time spent); one which I chose to cleanse myself of and, therefore, I destroyed it."

Is He A Hippy?

Deutsch sports an earring and wears "Big Mac" work shirts. When he first enrolled at MPC, he sported a beard. However, he doesn't consider himself a "hippy."

"At 27, I have covered too broad an area. I have two Honorable Discharges (Army and Navy), have been in the Merchant Marines since 1958, have spent a few years in prison and traveled the U. S., Canada, Mexico and British West Indies. Can you still be a 'hippy' after all that?"

The wayward traveler also mounts a mean attack on the junior college system.

More Dynamic Education

"I want searching, open and dynamic education. I want to explore my mind and the professor's. I want to question, reassemble, rearrange, and grow together with my masters. There are so few masters here or in the J. C. system; the curriculum is far too bland. There's no spice, little incentive and no involvement."

He returned to school because he has, in his words, "beat my head against too many brick walls along the way." He claims the nature of our society forces a person to be educated.

A Groovy Kind of Teacher

"If you are not credentialed, you're nowhere. Okay, I'll play your silly game . . . I'm getting my credentials. I want to teach Art. I just hope you're ready for me when I get there, because I'm going to tear up my credentials also, and wail a groovy new kind of hip teaching that you didn't even know existed. Of course, I'll get fired from that right off, also."

Whether the out-spoken rebel speaks for a minority of one or a dormant majority remains to be seen. He has been instrumental in the approval of new voting regulations in the Senate but, with that accomplishment, his enthusiasm seems to be waning. Whether or not his fires will be rekindled with some new cause remains to be seen.

Priest Deplores State Spending

As the first woman running for constitutional state-wide office in the history of California, Mrs. Ivy Baker Priest claims that she is running "because I could bring experience to the office of the State Treasurer."

Mrs. Priest spoke to students in the Audio-Visual Room recently and discussed her eight years of experience as United States Treasurer under President Dwight Eisenhower.

She also discussed what she hopes to accomplish if she is elected Treasurer of the state that currently has a $4.6 billion annual budget, the largest of all 50 states.

In calling for "a complete study and overhaul of the state tax structure," she stated "we must find ways of preventing waste in order to save money for meeting the needs of the state with its growing numbers of students and colleges.

e.g. Hunts for 'Creative Flair'

e.g., MPC's answer to the Evergreen Review, is again conducting a talent hunt for promising writers with creative flair, according to Dave Allen, the magazine's editor.

A student-produced publication devoted to creative expression, the e.g. (exempli gratia: for example) first came off the presses in 1958 as an adjunct to the campus yearbook. The first junior college literary magazine of its kind in the state, e.g. was retained when the yearbook was dropped in 1959.

Brainchild of its adviser, Mr. Ray Fabrizio, English instructor, e.g. is rated one of the finest magazines of its kind in the state.

Future Hemingways, Sartres or Cummings interested in submitting work for consideration should contact either Mr. Fabrizio, Allen or attend the e.g.'s staff meetings from 3-5 p.m., Fridays. The sessions consist mainly of reading submitted works.

e.g.'s editorial crew expects this year's issue to go to press around Christmas, but all material must be submitted by the Thanksgiving break. All forms of creative writing are welcome.

Barron Speaks Today . . .

Barron asked "Why are you unwilling to debate with me?"

Dr. Leach went to the microphone and told Barron, "We have agreed to this format. Will you please knock it off, Gerry?"

During the question-answer period Barron made a third attempt to engage Talcott. At that point Dr. Leach threatened to have Barron "escorted off campus" if he continued to interfere with the proceedings.

IRC Celebrates UN's 21st Year

The Interntional Relations Club recently celebrated the 21st Anniversary of the United Nations with "Entertainment from Home and Abroad," performing to an overflow crowd of about 500 spectators in the Library Patio.

A hula, go-go girls, folk singers and a foursome of dancers doing the "Tinikling," a clacking bamboo dance from the Philippine Islands, highlighted the entertainment.

The affair's international flavor was accented by the sprinkling of costumes in the crowd worn by foreign students. Mustafa Ahmad, wearing an Arab costume, stole the show when he explained how he got his robes. "My great-grandfather gave them to my grandfather, who in turn gave them to my father, who in turn sold them to me," he said.

While the International Relations Club traditionally honors United Nations Day, "This year," according to Dennis Flanders, IRC president, "was the first time we have made it a United Nations Week."

Dr. Jack Leach in a short keynote address praised the United Nations as "a useful organization that has the mechanisms for peace making, if the nations of the world would use them."

Donations and a bake sale during the show netted $53 which will be used for charity in South Vietnam, according to Flanders.

Lobos Return Home, Face Menlo

Laney Defeats Lobo Harriers

Placing six runners in the top 10 places, Laney College defeated the Lobo Harriers 24-37 in a conference cross country meet in Oakland last Friday.

MPC placed only four runners in the top 10. This gives the Lobos a 2-2-1 season record.

Frank Mancha was the individual winner with a time of 18:58 over the hilly three-mile course. He was followed across the line by Pat King, 4th; Robin Rasmussen, 7th; Andy Mozel, 10th; Norm Hamisch, 13th; Mike Cooper, 15th; and Fred Parker, 17th.

Today the Lobos travel to Salinas to compete against Hartnell College in a non-conference meet. This meet will be a "warm up" for next week's Coast Conference cross country championship meet at Solano College.

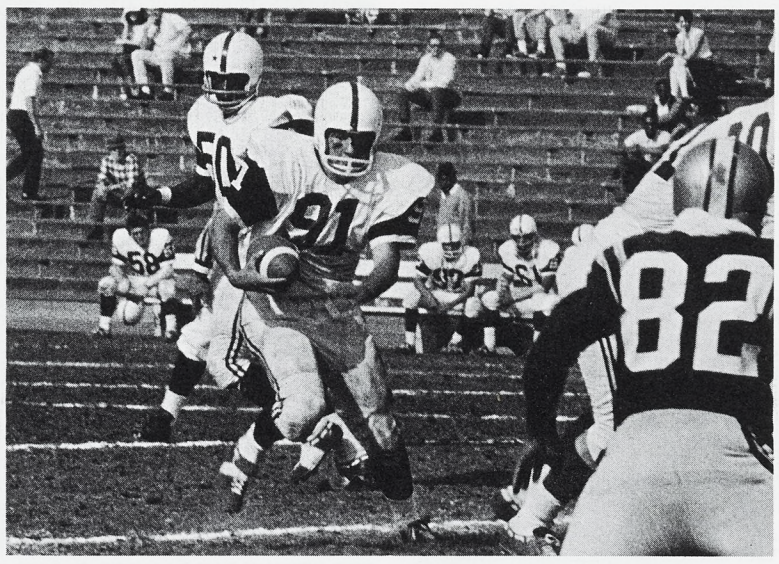

According to statistics based on the dual meets throughout the season, Cabrillo College is favored to win the championship meet followed by Laney and Monterey.

Dan Williams of Hartnell, Tom Leikam of Cabrillo College, Rick Dyer of Cabrillo, or Frank Mancha of Monterey are favored to take individual honors. Pat King and Robin Rasmussen should not be overlooked.

"We can beat Laney in the conference championship meet and we hope to prove it," Coach Dan Borden said.

Lobos Dominate Sports Day Activity

Scoring a high of 28 points, MPC dominated the MPCRA-sponsored All College Sports Day held here on October 22. The Lobos were followed by San Francisco City College and Foothill College with 18 points each, and Hartnell with 16.

About 400 students, representing San Jose City College, San Francisco City College, Hartnell, Cabrillo, Merrit College of Oakland, Foothill, Diablo Valley, West Valley and MPC participated.

Marie Sidone was MPC's lone victor in the tennis competition, winning the womens singles event.

Tom Walsh and Bennie Pabalate led MPC to first place in the bowling competition. Walsh won Mens High Series with a 592 overall score. His high game for the day was a 210. Pabalate won Womens High Series with a 495 overall pin score.

Ken Baptista also had a fine series in his 562 with a 207 high game. Dave Nakashima had a 210 game for MPC.

MPC also won the High Team Series with a 2077 pin score.

In the golf competition, Dave LaGare shot a sizzling 34 for nine holes to win the Mens Division. On the distaff side, Christine Lundberg fired a 44 for nine holes to lead the field. LaGare also won the Low Putts award with an overall 13 putts, and drove his ball 21 feet from the cup to win the Hole-in-One contest.

The Lobos placed 3rd and 4th respectively in the chess and volleyball competition.

Aquamen Host Cal Poly Today

Monterey aquamen host Cal Poly in the non-conference competition today. Game time is 3:30 p.m.

Defeating Cabrillo College on October 19, and then losing to Menlo College on Oct. 25, the Lobo aquamen stand 1-1 in conference play.

The Lobos downed Cabrillo, 14-1. Duane Olson was high scorer for Monterey with five goals. Ken Esaki, John Welch, and Rex Titus had two each. Monterey Holt, Tim Peterson and Dave Mathews scored one apiece.

Coach Trendt cited John Michem, Lobo goalie, for his "fine defensive effort" against Cabrillo in allowing them to score only once.

Menlo College sunk the aquamen, 9-2. Olson and Titus scored the only Lobo goals.

The Lobos edged University of Santa Clara, 5-4, in a non-conference meet October 21. Olson again was high scorer for MPC with three goals. Welch and Peterson each had one. "This was the best game the team has played thus far," according to Coach Trendt.

The aquamen lost to Foothill College 26-2, in non-conference action the following day. Tim Peterson and Rex Titus scored for Monterey.

Coach Trendt cited the team for their "fine offensive and defensive effort" against Foothill which is ranked number one in the nation in water polo.

San Jose City College downed the Lobos, 18-4, in a non-conference meet last Friday. Olson was high scorer for Monterey with two goals. Esaki and Titus scored one each.

Griders Tied for Second In Conference Standings

Hoping to win their last home game of the season tomorrow night, the Lobo gridders tackle the invading Menlo Oaks at MPC Stadium. Kick-off will be at 8 p.m.

Monterey is currently tied with Hartnell for second place in conference standings while Menlo is in a three-way tie with West Valley and Gavilan for fourth place.

Both teams are sporting 4-2 seasonal records.

Laney Clips Monterey

The Lobos dropped a hard fought 27-12 decision to the undefeated Laney Eagles last week. Menlo met Laney in the first round of conference play and the Eagles squashed them, 51-6.

But the Oaks have risen up in their last two games to defeat both Cabrillo and Gavilan.

Monterey rolled over Menlo, 40-6, last year. But it's unlikely that the Oaks will be such easy game for the Lobos tomorrow night.

Parker Stands Out

Returning lettermen Jim Parker, at halfback, is a big gun for Menlo. He is one of the conference leaders in rushing, pass receiving, and scoring.

Another Menlo star is Dan Kelley who stands out in pass receiving and scoring.

Not to be overlooked is Walt Gebauer, a formidable ground gainer.

The Oaks' top passer is Rich Olson, who is a conference leader in that specialty. He has connected with a host of Menlo receivers, including Parker, Kelley, T. J. Shank, and Bill LeBlanc.

Pass Defense

The Lobos might be looking to intercept some of Olson's bombs. He has the dubious honor of also being the conference leader in connecting with the wrong receivers.

The Menlo line boasts six returning lettermen.

The Oaks undoubtedly will be gunning for Lobo fullback Bennie Britt.

Britt has consistently been Monterey's "bread and butter" man. On the strength of his two touchdowns against Laney — a team which until last week had given up only three TD's in five games — Britt has become Monterey's leading scorer with 24 points to his credit.

Eagles Forced to Fly

Dominating the ground and forcing the Eagles to take to the air, the Lobos gained 123 yards in 56 carries as opposed to Laney's 105 yards in 39 carries. Spearheading the Lobo attack was Britt who moved the ball 71 yards in 28 plays.

Monterey has been steadily increasing its reliance upon Britt. He carried the ball 18 times against Solano, 23 times against Gavilan, and 28 times against Laney.

If the Oaks are superstitious they'll be looking for Britt to make 33 carries.
